The Coroner did impanel a jury of newspaper men at the grave, and ordered them to report at his court Friday morning.

The prosecution, however, claim they can defeat the quibbles of the counsel for defense by showing that the first jury could not have been impanelled, because newspaper men are exempt from jury duty. Again, they claim that they have and will produce certain portions of Annie Goodwin's body which will preclude the necessity for further exhumation.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)
ALBARY, July 26.—The Board of Regents, after listening to the report of its com-mittee, has decided to issue charters to the five Catholic institutions applying for membership in the Slate University.

According to the law, academies to become members of the State system of education and fo share in the distribution of the scademic fund of $100,000 a year, are required to hold a certain amount of property, and to have a certain library and apparatus.

By the decision just ratified the Regents agreed to accept, instead of the actual ownership of the property, a legal lease by which the Catholic Church transfers the property to the schools for fifty years.

The Committee's report was to the effect that the proposed lease met all the legal conditions and requirements, so that during the fifty years the school will really have as full control of their property as if they owned it.

A charter is already being drawn for St. John's Catholic Academy at Syracuse and charters will be issued to the four others schools as soon as their leasess have been properly executed.
